COMMISSIONER MASON'S PENSION SPEECH A Comment on Private Dalzell's Opinion of the comments of Private Dalzell on the speech of Commissioner of Internal revenue John W. Mason, delivered at They do double the speed of cast iron.

Down in Alabama sheep stealing is the reunion of Maulaby's Battery at Palatine last week. The Private attempts to be witty at the avenue of feet. Palatine last week. The Private attempts to be witty at the expense of facts. He intimates that the proposition of the Commissioner to pension all honorably discharged Union soldiers, who may have reached the age of 60 years, would raise the tax on whisky and beer, as though these were the only sources of income to the government. While, as stated by the Commissioner, these are largely sources of income, yet they are by no means all, and if so, then what would become of the $80,000,000 paid to soldiers were the tax on whisky and tobacco, or either, abolished, as is proposed by some? The Commissioner referred to the practicable manner in which the pensions he suggested due the soldiers could be met, and clearly showed that with this even-handed justice meted out, no one would be aggrieved, and no additional taxation required.
